

TWICE

THIS WEEK IN CONSUMER ELECTRONICS

Toshiba will lead the launch of the HD DVD optical disc products and systems at latest annual CES by introducing its first player for the U.S. market.

Esai will introduce the EasyShare VTR1, a consumer digital camera with two lenses.

Sony's Blu-ray Disc player will be among a host of new devices based on the high-definition optical disc system slated to debut in Las Vegas.

On the way out at the first Dash-memory MP3 portable that it re-charges and more XM satellite products.

SPECIAL 2006 International CES[®] EDITION

LG's 2006 PHE9 Portable Media Center records directly off a TV, VCR or other video source via composite input.

Toshiba will use at a number of flat-panel TV models expanding product line with high-definition 1080p models, including the 4W-inch LCD TV.

WHAT'S INSIDE:

- Holiday Retail Sales Report, p. 7
- NPD Group's market share reports by category, p. 18
- Complete CES new product coverage throughout the issue